

International Conference on Cardiovascular Health and Community Medicine
– Welcome Message

Dear Participants and Esteemed Colleagues,

We are delighted to extend a warm welcome to all of you for the 5th International Conference on Cardiovascular Health and Community Medicine, organized by the Community Medicine Research Center (CMRC) at Chang Gung Memorial Hospital in Keelung, Taiwan. Our heartfelt gratitude goes out to all the healthcare professionals and researchers joining us for this momentous event.

For the past several editions, our conference has showcased the remarkable achievements of our cohort studies in the fields of endocrine disruptor, public health, mental health, liver disease, and artificial intelligence. These successes stand as a testament to the dedication and expertise of our community of researchers. The impact of this work has been felt not only within our community but also across the broader landscape of medical science.

In this 5th edition of our conference, we turn our attention to the intricate web of causation between cardiovascular health and various risk factors affecting community residents. The focus of our discussions will include environmental estrogens, heavy metals, air pollution, and specific lifestyle and dietary habits. It is our mission to shed light on the complex relationships between these factors and the cardiovascular well-being of our communities, as well as to explore innovative approaches to mitigating risk and enhancing public health.

We are privileged to host a diverse group of experts and scholars from around the world, each bringing their unique insights and research to enrich our discussions. This event, scheduled for Saturday, December 16th, 2023 (Taipei Time) from 08:00 to 15:30 (GMT+8), promises to be a day of discovery and collaboration that will shape the future of community medicine.

We invite you to share your valuable insights and experiences as we collectively work towards improving the health of our communities. Your contributions are the lifeblood of our conference, and we are eager to learn from your expertise.

We anticipate a day filled with engaging discussions, knowledge sharing, and the forging of meaningful connections. Thank you for being a part of this journey, and we hope you find this conference both enlightening and inspiring.

Best regards,

Dr. Yi-Sheng Chan
