

索書號：WB60/F174

登錄號：E0013642

介購單位：圖書館

書名：Faith and ethics in health and social care

作者：Ann Gallagher

內容簡介： Care facilities often reflect the multifaith and multicultural nature of society. Because of their diverse populations of health and social care staff and the varied lives and backgrounds of the care-recipients, questions of faith and ethics necessarily arise. This book, written by medical, nursing and social care practitioners from 11 different world faiths, helps health and social care-givers to articulate and reflect on how their faith informs the way they work. It i also aids the development of understanding of the ethical and pastoral choices made by their colleagues and care-recipients from other faith traditions. The book equips care practitioners to be more reflective about matters of ethics, faith and care and to feel more confident concerning their own and their colleagues' underpinning beliefs. Book jacket. This textbook looks at how different world faiths approach ethics in health and social care, and how their faith informs their practice.

目錄：

- 1 Introduction
- 2 Ethical Implications of the Bahai Faith
- 3 Buddhism in Health and Social Care
- 4 Christian Ethics and Care Practices
- 5 Confucian Ethics and Care
- 6 Hinduism, Ethics and Care
- 7 Humanism, Ethics and Care
- ... More